Beneficiary: [REDACTED]

PETITION: Immigrant Petition for Alien Worker as a Member of the Professions Holding an Advanced Degree or an Alien of Exceptional Ability Pursuant to Section 203(b)(2) of the Immigration and Nationality Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1153(b)(2)

ON BEHALF OF PETITIONER:

INSTRUCTIONS:

Enclosed please find the decision of the Administrative Appeals Office in your case. All of the documents related to this matter have been returned to the office that originally decided your case. Please be advised that any further inquiry that you might have concerning your case must be made to that office.

If you believe the law was inappropriately applied by us in reaching our decision, or you have additional information that you wish to have considered, you may file a motion to reconsider or a motion to reopen. The specific requirements for filing such a request can be found at 8 C.F.R. § 103.5. The fee for a Form I-290B is currently $585, but will increase to $630 on November 23, 2010. Any appeal or motion filed on or after November 23, 2010 must be filed with the $630 fee. Please be aware that 8 C.F.R. § 103.5(a)(1)(i) requires that any motion must be filed within 30 days of the decision that the motion seeks to reconsider or reopen.

Thank you

Perry Rhew
Chief, Administrative Appeals Office

DISCUSSION: The Director, Texas Service Center, denied the employment-based immigrant visa petition, which is now before the Administrative Appeals Office (AAO) on appeal. The appeal will be dismissed.

The petitioner is a computer consulting service company. It seeks to employ the beneficiary permanently in the United States as a computer software engineer, applications (“programmer analyst”) pursuant to section 203(b)(2) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the Act), 8 U.S.C. § 1153(b)(2). As required by statute, a Form ETA 750 Application for Alien Employment Certification approved by the Department of Labor (DOL), accompanied the petition. Upon reviewing the petition, the director determined that the petitioner did not demonstrate its ability to pay the proffered wage from the time the labor certification was accepted onwards.

The record shows that the appeal is properly filed and timely and makes a specific allegation of error in law or fact. The procedural history in this case is documented by the record and incorporated into the decision. Further elaboration of the procedural history will be made only as necessary.

Section 203(b)(2) of the Act provides immigrant classification to members of the professions holding advanced degrees or their equivalent and whose services are sought by an employer in the United States. An advanced degree is a United States academic or professional degree or a foreign equivalent degree above the baccalaureate level. 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(k)(2). The regulation further states: “A United States baccalaureate degree or a foreign equivalent degree followed by at least five years of progressive experience in the specialty shall be considered the equivalent of a master’s degree. If a doctoral degree is customarily required by the specialty, the alien must have a United States doctorate or a foreign equivalent degree.” Id.

The AAO conducts appellate review on a de novo basis. See Soltane v. DOJ, 381 F.3d 143, 145 (3d Cir. 2004). The AAO considers all pertinent evidence in the record, including new evidence properly submitted upon appeal.<sup>1</sup>

On appeal, we have identified additional grounds of ineligibility: the petition was filed under the incorrect category and the petitioner failed to adequately document that the beneficiary has the required education and experience for the position offered. An application or petition that fails to comply with the technical requirements of the law may be denied by the AAO even if the Service Center does not identify all of the grounds for denial in the initial decision. See Spencer Enterprises, Inc. v. United States, 229 F. Supp. 2d 1025, 1043 (E.D. Cal. 2001), aff’d, 345 F.3d 683 (9th Cir. 2003); see also Soltane v. DOJ, 381 F.3d 143, 145 (3d Cir. 2004) (noting that the AAO conducts appellate review on a de novo basis). Section 203(b) of the Act states in pertinent part that:

<sup>1</sup> The submission of additional evidence on appeal is allowed by the instructions to the Form I-290B, which are incorporated into the regulations by the regulation at 8 C.F.R. § 103.2(a)(1). The record in the instant case provides no reason to preclude consideration of any of the documents newly submitted on appeal. See Matter of Soriano, 19 I&N Dec. 764 (BIA 1988).

(2) Aliens who are members of the professions holding advanced degrees or aliens of exceptional ability. --

(A) In general. -- Visas shall be made available . . . to qualified immigrants who are members of the professions holding advanced degrees or their equivalent or who because of their exceptional ability in the sciences, arts, or business, will substantially benefit prospectively the national economy, cultural or educational interests, or welfare of the United States, and whose services in the sciences, arts, professions, or business are sought by an employer in the United States.

The regulation at 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(k)(4) provides the following:

(i) General. Every petition under this classification must be accompanied by an individual labor certification from the Department of Labor, by an application for Schedule A designation (if applicable), or by documentation to establish that the alien qualifies for one of the shortage occupations in the Department of Labor's Labor Market Information Pilot Program. To apply for Schedule A designation or to establish that the alien's occupation is within the Labor Market Information Program, a fully executed uncertified Form ETA-750 in duplicate must accompany the petition. The job offer portion of the individual labor certification, Schedule A application, or Pilot Program application must demonstrate that the job requires a professional holding an advanced degree or the equivalent or an alien of exceptional ability.

The regulation at 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(k)(2) defines an advanced degree as follows:

[A]ny United States academic or professional degree or a foreign equivalent degree above that of baccalaureate. A United States baccalaureate degree or a foreign equivalent degree followed by at least five years of progressive experience in the specialty shall be considered the equivalent of a master's degree. If a doctoral degree is customarily required by the specialty, the alien must have a United States doctorate degree or a foreign equivalent degree.

Section 203(b)(3)(A)(i) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the Act), 8 U.S.C. § 1153(b)(3)(A)(i), provides for the granting of preference classification to qualified immigrants who are capable, at the time of petitioning for classification under this paragraph, of performing skilled labor (requiring at least two years training or experience), not of a temporary nature, for which qualified workers are not available in the United States. Section 203(b)(3)(A)(ii) of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1153(b)(3)(A)(ii), also provides for the granting of preference classification to qualified immigrants who hold baccalaureate degrees and are members of the professions.

In this matter, block 14 of the labor certification reflects that a Bachelor of Arts degree is the minimum level of education required and that two years of experience are required. As such, the labor certification does not require an alien with an advanced degree or a bachelors degree plus five years of experience to meet the requirements of 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(k)(2).

There is no provision in statute or regulation that compels United States Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS) to readjudicate a petition under a different visa classification in response to a petitioner's request to change it, once the decision has been rendered. A petitioner may not make material changes to a petition in an effort to make a deficient petition conform to USCIS requirements. See Matter of Izummi, 22 I&N Dec. 169, 176 (Assoc. Comm. 1988). In this matter, the appropriate remedy would be to file another petition, request the proper classification and submit the proper fee and required documentation.

In regards to the petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage, the regulation at 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(g)(2) states in pertinent part:

Ability of prospective employer to pay wage. Any petition filed by or for an employment-based immigrant which requires an offer of employment must be accompanied by evidence that the prospective United States employer has the ability to pay the proffered wage. The petitioner must demonstrate this ability at the time the priority date is established and continuing until the beneficiary obtains lawful permanent residence. Evidence of this ability shall be either in the form of copies of annual reports, federal tax returns, or audited financial statements.

The petitioner must demonstrate the continuing ability to pay the proffered wage beginning on the priority date, which is the date the Form ETA 750, Application for Alien Employment Certification, was accepted for processing by any office within the employment system of the DOL. See 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(d). The petitioner must also demonstrate that, on the priority date, the beneficiary had the qualifications stated on its Form ETA 750, Application for Alien Employment Certification, as certified by the DOL and submitted with the instant petition. Matter of Wing's Tea House, 16 I&N Dec. 158 (Act. Reg. Comm. 1977).

Here, the Form ETA 750 was accepted on August 30, 2004. The proffered wage as stated on the Form ETA 750 is $65,000 per year.

The evidence in the record of proceeding shows that the petitioner is structured as an S corporation. On the petition, the petitioner claimed to have been established in 2007,<sup>2</sup> but fails to state that it employs any workers. A letter accompanying the petition states that the petitioner currently employs one worker. According to the tax returns in the record, the petitioner's fiscal year is based on the calendar year. On the Form ETA 750B, signed by the beneficiary on July 12, 2004, the beneficiary claimed to have begun working for the petitioner in February 2004.

<sup>2</sup> As the labor certification was filed in August 2004, it is unclear how the petitioner could have been established in 2007. "It is incumbent on the petitioner to resolve any inconsistencies in the record by independent objective evidence, and attempts to explain or reconcile such inconsistencies, absent competent objective evidence pointing to where the truth, in fact, lies, will not suffice." Matter of Ho, 19 I&N Dec. 582, 591-592 (BIA 1988).

The petitioner must establish that its job offer to the beneficiary is a realistic one. Because the filing of an ETA 750 labor certification application establishes a priority date for any immigrant petition later based on the ETA 750, the petitioner must establish that the job offer was realistic as of the priority date and that the offer remained realistic for each year thereafter, until the beneficiary obtains lawful permanent residence. The petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage is an essential element in evaluating whether a job offer is realistic. See Matter of Great Wall, 16 I&N Dec. 142 (Acting Reg. Comm. 1977); see also 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(g)(2). In evaluating whether a job offer is realistic, United States Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS) requires the petitioner to demonstrate financial resources sufficient to pay the beneficiary's proffered wages, although the totality of the circumstances affecting the petitioning business will be considered if the evidence warrants such consideration. See Matter of Sonogawa, 12 I&N Dec. 612 (Reg. Comm. 1967).

In determining the petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage during a given period, USCIS will first examine whether the petitioner employed and paid the beneficiary during that period. If the petitioner establishes by documentary evidence that it employed the beneficiary at a salary equal to or greater than the proffered wage, the evidence will be considered prima facie proof of the petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage. The petitioner provided no evidence that it employed or paid the beneficiary any wages.

On appeal, counsel states that the director erred by not considering that the petitioner paid wages since February 2004 as required by the beneficiary's H-1B status. The evidence submitted shows that the petitioner paid wages to its employees in the amount of $23,716.48 in the first quarter of 2007, but the employees receiving any wages were not identified. The petitioner also submitted evidence that it employed another individual (not the beneficiary) in 2006, but does not specify any wage paid. This evidence does not show that the petitioner paid the beneficiary during any of the relevant time period. The salary and wages line on the tax returns reflect that the petitioner paid wages in the amount of $107,438 in 2006, $256,666 in 2005, and $243,157 in 2004, however, the tax returns do not specify to whom the wages were paid. Wages paid to other employees do not demonstrate the petitioner's ability to pay the beneficiary's proffered wage. The petitioner did not submit any W-2 statements with the initial filing or on appeal for the beneficiary despite its claims that it employed the beneficiary.

If the petitioner does not establish that it employed and paid the beneficiary an amount at least equal to the proffered wage during that period, USCIS will next examine the net income figure reflected on the petitioner's federal income tax return, without consideration of depreciation or other expenses. River Street Donuts, LLC v. Napolitano, 558 F.3d 111 (1st Cir. 2009); Taco Especial v. Napolitano, --- F. Supp. 2d. ---, 2010 WL 956001, at *6 (E.D. Mich. 2010). Reliance on federal income tax returns as a basis for determining a petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage is well established by judicial precedent. Elatos Restaurant Corp. v. Sava, 632 F. Supp. 1049, 1054 (S.D.N.Y. 1986) (citing Tongatapu Woodcraft Hawaii, Ltd. v. Feldman, 736 F.2d 1305 (9th Cir. 1984)); see also Chi-Feng Chang v. Thornburgh, 719 F. Supp. 532 (N.D. Texas 1989); K.C.P. Food Co., Inc. v. Sava, 623 F. Supp. 1080 (S.D.N.Y. 1985); Ubeda v. Palmer, 539 F. Supp. 647 (N.D. Ill. 1982), aff'd, 703 F.2d 571 (7th Cir. 1983). Reliance on the petitioner's gross receipts and wage expense is misplaced. Showing that the petitioner's gross receipts exceeded the proffered wage is insufficient. Similarly, showing that the petitioner paid wages in excess of the proffered wage is insufficient.

In K.C.P. Food Co., Inc. v. Sava, 623 F. Supp. at 1084, the court held that the Immigration and Naturalization Service, now USCIS, had properly relied on the petitioner's net income figure, as stated on the petitioner's corporate income tax returns, rather than the petitioner's gross income. The court specifically rejected the argument that USCIS should have considered income before expenses were paid rather than net income.

With respect to depreciation, the court in River Street Donuts noted:

The AAO recognized that a depreciation deduction is a systematic allocation of the cost of a tangible long-term asset and does not represent a specific cash expenditure during the year claimed. Furthermore, the AAO indicated that the allocation of the depreciation of a long-term asset could be spread out over the years or concentrated into a few depending on the petitioner's choice of accounting and depreciation methods. Nonetheless, the AAO explained that depreciation represents an actual cost of doing business, which could represent either the diminution in value of buildings and equipment or the accumulation of funds necessary to replace perishable equipment and buildings. Accordingly, the AAO stressed that even though amounts deducted for depreciation do not represent current use of cash, neither does it represent amounts available to pay wages.

We find that the AAO has a rational explanation for its policy of not adding depreciation back to net income. Namely, that the amount spent on a long term tangible asset is a "real" expense.

River Street Donuts, 558 F.3d at 116. "[USCIS] and judicial precedent support the use of tax returns and the net income figures in determining petitioner's ability to pay. Plaintiffs' argument that these figures should be revised by the court by adding back depreciation is without support." Chi-Feng Chang, 719 F.Supp. at 537 (emphasis added).

The record before the director closed on July 30, 2007 with the receipt by the director of the petitioner's original submissions. As of that date, the most current tax return available was the petitioner's 2006 federal tax return.

- In 2004, the Form 1120S stated net income<sup>3</sup> of $2,528.

- In 2005, the Form 1120S stated net income of [REDACTED]
- In 2006, the Form 1120S stated net income of [REDACTED]

Therefore, the petitioner's net income was insufficient to demonstrate its ability to pay the proffered wage in 2004, 2005, or 2006.

As an alternate means of determining the petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage, USCIS may review the petitioner's net current assets. Net current assets are the difference between the petitioner's current assets and current liabilities.<sup>4</sup> A corporation's year-end current assets are shown on Schedule L, lines 1 through 6. Its year-end current liabilities are shown on lines 16 through 18. If the total of a corporation's end-of-year net current assets and the wages paid to the beneficiary (if any) are equal to or greater than the proffered wage, the petitioner is expected to be able to pay the proffered wage using those net current assets.

- The 2004 Form 1120S showed net current assets of [REDACTED]
- The 2005 Form 1120S showed net current assets of [REDACTED]
- The 2006 Form 1120S showed net current assets of [REDACTED]

Therefore, the petitioner is unable to demonstrate sufficient net current assets to pay the proffered wage in 2004, 2005 or 2006.

Therefore, from the date the Form ETA 750 was accepted for processing by the DOL, the petitioner had not established that it had the continuing ability to pay the beneficiary the proffered wage as of the priority date through an examination of wages paid to the beneficiary, or its net income or net current assets.

On appeal, counsel argues that USCIS's approval of a petition for a second sponsored worker means that the denial of this petition would be arbitrary and capricious as it is based on the same financial information. The petitioner did not submit the other Form I-140 or its supporting documentation including evidence of pay, if any, so that we are unable to determine what evidence was before the director in that case. In any event, each petition is considered separately and a petition may not be approved without sufficient supporting evidence of the beneficiary's qualifications and the petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage: evidence that is lacking in this case.<sup>5</sup> In addition, where a petitioner has filed multiple petitions for multiple beneficiaries which have been pending simultaneously, the petitioner must produce evidence that its job offers to each beneficiary are realistic, and therefore that it has the ability to pay the proffered wages to each of the beneficiaries of its pending petitions, as of the priority date of each petition and continuing until the beneficiary of each petition obtains lawful permanent residence. See Matter of Great Wall, 16 I&N Dec. 142, 144-145 (Acting Reg. Comm. 1977) (petitioner must establish ability to pay as of the date of the Form MA 7-50B job offer, the predecessor to the Form ETA 750 and Form ETA 9089). See also 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(g)(2). Since the record in the instant petition fails to establish the petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage to the single beneficiary of the instant petition, it is not necessary to consider further whether the evidence also establishes the petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage to the beneficiaries of the other petitions filed by the petitioner.

Form 1120S, 2008, at <http://www.irs.gov/pub/irs-pdf/i1120s.pdf> (accessed November 3, 2009) (indicating that Schedule K is a summary schedule of all shareholder's shares of the corporation's income, deductions, credits, etc.). Because the petitioner had additional adjustments shown on its Schedule K for all of the years at issue, the petitioner's net income is found on Schedule K of its tax returns.

<sup>4</sup> According to Barron's Dictionary of Accounting Terms 117 (3rd ed. 2000), "current assets" consist of items having (in most cases) a life of one year or less, such as cash, marketable securities, inventory and prepaid expenses. "Current liabilities" are obligations payable (in most cases) within one year, such accounts payable, short-term notes payable, and accrued expenses (such as taxes and salaries). Id. at 118.

USCIS may consider the overall magnitude of the petitioner's business activities in its determination of the petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage. See Matter of Sonegawa, 12 I&N Dec. 612 (BIA 1967). The petitioning entity in Sonegawa had been in business for over 11 years and routinely earned a gross annual income of about $100,000. During the year in which the petition was filed in that case, the petitioner changed business locations and paid rent on both the old and new locations for five months. There were large moving costs and also a period of time when the petitioner was unable to do regular business. The Regional Commissioner determined that the petitioner's prospects for a resumption of successful business operations were well established. The petitioner was a fashion designer whose work had been featured in Time and Look magazines. Her clients included Miss Universe, movie actresses, and society matrons. The petitioner's clients had been included in the lists of the best-dressed California women. The petitioner lectured on fashion design at design and fashion shows throughout the United States and at colleges and universities in California. The Regional Commissioner's determination in Sonegawa was based in part on the petitioner's sound business reputation and outstanding reputation as a couturiere. As in Sonegawa, USCIS may, at its discretion, consider evidence relevant to the petitioner's financial ability that falls outside of a petitioner's net income and net current assets. USCIS may consider such factors as the number of years the petitioner has been doing business, the established historical growth of the petitioner's business, the overall number of employees, the occurrence of any uncharacteristic business expenditures or losses, the petitioner's reputation within its industry, whether the beneficiary is replacing a former employee or an outsourced service, or any other evidence that USCIS deems relevant to the petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage.

In the instant case, the petitioner submitted no evidence to liken its situation to the one in Sonegawa. The petitioner demonstrated minimal net income in all of the years totaling a third or less of the proffered wage and negative net current assets in all of the years. In addition, the amount of salaries and wages paid by the petitioner decreased by more than half between 2005 and 2006 with no explanation from the petitioner. In addition, the petitioner failed to demonstrate its reputation in the industry similar to the situation presented in Sonegawa.<sup>6</sup> Counsel cites Full Gospel Portland Church v. Thornburgh, 730 F. Supp. 441 (D.D.C. 1988), which held that USCIS should consider the pledges of parishioners in determining a church's ability to pay. Counsel argues that the holding should be widened to include any "reasonable expectation of increased business" as evidence of a petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage. The petitioner submitted no evidence that it reasonably could expect an increase in business. Instead, the tax returns show that the petitioner's gross receipts have declined from $512,735 in 2004 to $280,694 in 2006. Thus, assessing the totality of the circumstances in this individual case, it is concluded that the petitioner has not established that it had the continuing ability to pay the proffered wage.

<sup>5</sup> The AAO is not required to approve applications or petitions where eligibility has not been demonstrated, merely because of prior approvals that may have been erroneous. See, e.g. Matter of Church Scientology International, 19 I&N Dec. 593, 597 (Comm. 1988).

Additionally, the petitioner did not submit evidence that the beneficiary had the required two years of experience as a programmer analyst. The regulation at 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(l)(3)(ii) specifies that:

(A) General. Any requirements of training or experience for skilled workers, professionals, or other workers must be supported by letters from trainers or employers giving the name, address, and title of the trainer or employer, and a description of the training received

The Form ETA 750 requires two years of experience as a programmer analyst before the priority date. The petitioner submitted a letter from [REDACTED]

<sup>6</sup> On appeal, counsel states that USCIS "must consider the normal accounting practice of the company even if the ability to pay is not reflected in the tax return" and "[a] beneficiary's ability to generate income can be used when determining a petitioner's ability to pay."

USCIS will consider evidence submitted into the record including audited financial statements outside of tax returns in the determination of whether the petitioner established its ability to pay the proffered wage. In this case, the petitioner submitted no evidence of its financial position outside of the tax returns and did not submit evidence that the beneficiary will help generate income. A petitioner must establish the elements for the approval of the petition at the time of filing. A petitioner must establish eligibility at the time of filing; a petition cannot be approved at a future date after the petitioner becomes eligible under a new set of facts. See Matter of Katigbak, 14 I&N Dec. 45, 49 (Comm. 1971).

Against the projection of future earnings, Matter of Great Wall, 16 I&N Dec. 142, 144-145 (Acting Reg. Comm. 1977) states:

I do not feel, nor do I believe the Congress intended, that the petitioner, who admittedly could not pay the offered wage at the time the petition was filed, should subsequently become eligible to have the petition approved under a new set of facts hinged upon probability and projections, even beyond the information presented on appeal.

stating that the beneficiary worked from December 18, 2000 to August 22, 2003 as an area sales manager. The petitioner submitted a second letter from an employee of [REDACTED] stating that the beneficiary worked as Director from May 1995 to July 1998. Neither of these positions are programmer analyst positions as required by the terms of the labor certification. On the ETA 750B, the beneficiary indicated that he began working as a programmer analyst for the petitioner in February 2004. The petitioner submitted no letter verifying this experience, but in any event, as the labor certification was accepted in August 2004, the beneficiary's experience with the petitioner is less than the two years required by the terms of the labor certification. To be eligible for approval, a beneficiary must have the education and experience specified on the labor certification as of the petition's filing date. See Matter of Wing's Tea House, 16 I&N Dec. 158 (Act. Reg. Comm. 1977). As a result, we are unable to conclude that the beneficiary had the necessary two years of prior experience at the time the labor certification was accepted by the DOL.

Further, although the petitioner submitted the beneficiary's U.S. Master's degree in Business Administration, nothing shows that this program was specialized in Economics. The record also contains an unsigned translation with no accompanying degree, transcripts, or evaluation to show that the beneficiary's foreign program of study is the U.S. equivalent of a bachelor's degree in economics to meet the terms of the labor certification.

Lastly, the petitioner is a consulting company. It submitted a copy of its consulting agreement with [REDACTED] located in Norcross, Georgia, and a copy of a work order for work to be performed in Millville, New Jersey for [REDACTED]. The work order specifies that only one consultant would be necessary and specifies an individual other than the beneficiary as the one who would be completing the work. The agreement with [REDACTED] was signed by the petitioner's president and was written in terms of individual work instead of as work for the petitioner as a whole. The Form ETA 750 specifies that the location of the work would be in Des Moines, Iowa.<sup>7,8</sup> A labor certification for a specific job offer is valid only for the particular job opportunity, the alien for whom the certification was granted, and for the area of intended employment stated on the Form ETA 750. 20 C.F.R. § 656.30(C)(2). It seems that the petitioner intends to employ the beneficiary in New Jersey outside the terms of the Form ETA 750. See Sunoco Energy Development Company, 17 I&N Dec. 283 (related to change of area of intended employment). "It is incumbent on the petitioner to resolve any inconsistencies in the record by independent objective evidence, and attempts to explain or reconcile such inconsistencies, absent competent objective evidence pointing to where the truth, in fact, lies, will not suffice." Matter of Ho, 19 I&N Dec. 582, 591-592 (BIA 1988). Also, in a letter dated March 19, 2007, the financial officer for the petitioner stated that the petitioner has only one full-time salaried employee even though the letterhead contains four office locations. It is not clear that the petitioner is the actual employer as opposed to supplying other companies with employees. In any further filings, the petitioner should clarify the employment location and the actual employer.<sup>9</sup>

<sup>7</sup> Item 7 on the Form ETA 750A is for "Address Where Alien Will Work (if different from item 6 [address of the applicant])." The petitioner left this space blank; the address appearing in Item 6 is [REDACTED]. Form I-140 lists an Iowa address and does not specify an alternate work address.

<sup>8</sup> The petitioner's letterhead states that it has offices in New York, NY, Urbandale, IA, Abington, PA, and Bangalore, India. The tax returns submitted show an address in Carteret, New Jersey.

<sup>9</sup> The regulation at 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(c) provides that “[a]ny United States employer desiring and intending to employ an alien may file a petition for classification of the alien under...section 203(b)(3) of the Act.” In addition, the Department of Labor (DOL) regulation at 20 C.F.R. § 656.3 states:

Employer means a person, association, firm, or a corporation which currently has a location within the United States to which U.S. workers may be referred for employment, and which proposes to employ a full-time worker at a place within the United States or the authorized representative of such a person, association, firm, or corporation.

In this case, the record contains confliction information that the petitioner will actually employ the beneficiary directly.

In determining whether there is an “employee-employer relationship,” the Supreme Court of the United States has determined that where a federal statute fails to clearly define the term “employee,” courts should conclude “that Congress intended to describe the conventional master-servant relationship as understood by common-law agency doctrine.” Nationwide Mutual Ins. Co. v. Darden, 503 U.S. 318, 322-323 (1992) (hereinafter “Darden”) (quoting Community for Creative Non-Violence v. Reid, 490 U.S. 730 (1989)). That definition is as follows:

In determining whether a hired party is an employee under the general common law of agency, we consider the hiring party's right to control the manner and means by which the product is accomplished. Among the other factors relevant to this inquiry are the skill required; the source of the instrumentalities and tools; the location of the work; the duration of the relationship between the parties; whether the hiring party has the right to assign additional projects to the hired party; the extent of the hired party's discretion over when and how long to work; the method of payment; the hired party's role in hiring and paying assistants; whether the work is part of the regular business of the hiring party; whether the hiring party is in business; the provision of employee benefits; and the tax treatment of the hired party.

Darden, 503 U.S. at 323-324; see also Restatement (Second) of Agency § 220(2) (1958); Clackamas Gastroenterology Associates, P.C. v. Wells, 538 U.S. 440 (2003) (hereinafter “Clackamas”). As the common-law test contains “no shorthand formula or magic phrase that can be applied to find the answer, ... all of the incidents of the relationship must be assessed and weighed with no one factor being decisive.” Darden, 503 U.S. at 324 (quoting NLRB v. United Ins. Co. of America, 390 U.S. 254, 258 (1968)).

In considering whether or not one is an “employee,” U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS) must focus on the common-law touchstone of control. Clackamas, 538 U.S. at 450. Factors indicating that a worker is an “employee” of an “employer” are clearly delineated in both the Darden and Clackamas decisions. 503 U.S. at 323-324; see also Restatement (Second) of Agency § 220(2) (1958). Such indicia of control include when, where, and how a worker performs the job; the continuity of the worker’s relationship with the employer; the tax treatment of the worker; the provision of employee benefits; and whether the work performed by the worker is part of the employer’s regular business. See Clackamas, 538 U.S. at 448-449; cf. New Compliance Manual, Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, § 2-III(A)(1), (EEOC 2006) (adopting a materially identical test and indicating that said test was based on the Darden decision).

It is important to note that the factors listed in Darden and Clackamas are not exhaustive and must be evaluated on a case-by-case basis. Other aspects of the relationship between the parties may affect the determination of whether an employer-employee relationship exists. Furthermore, not all or even a majority of the listed criteria need be met; however, the fact finder must weigh and compare a combination of the factors in analyzing the facts of each individual case. The determination must be based on all of the circumstances in the relationship between the parties, regardless of whether the parties refer to it as an employee or as an independent contractor relationship. See Clackamas, 538 U.S. at 448-449; New Compliance Manual at § 2-III(A)(1).

In the present matter, it is unclear that the petitioning entity would be the beneficiary’s actual employer.

In Clackamas, the specific inquiry was whether four physicians, actively engaged in medical practice as shareholders, could be considered employees to determine whether the petitioner to qualify as an employer under the American with Disabilities Act of 1990 (ADA), which necessitates an employer have fifteen employees. The court cites to Darden that “We have often been asked to construe the meaning of ‘employee’ where the statute containing the term does not helpfully define it.” Clackamas, 538 U.S. at 444, (citing Darden, 503 U.S. at 318, 322). The court found the regulatory definition to be circular in that the ADA defined an “employee” as “individual employed by the employer.” Id. (citing 42 U.S.C. § 12111(4)). Similarly, in Darden, where the court considered whether an insurance salesman was an independent contractor or an “employee” covered by the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 (ERISA), the court found the ERISA definition to be circular and adopted a common-law test to determine who would qualify as an “employee under ERISA. Id. (citing Darden, 503 U.S. at 323). In looking to Darden, the court stated, “as Darden reminds us, congressional silence often reflects an expectation that courts will look to the common law to fill gaps in statutory text, particularly when an undefined term has a settled meaning in common law. Congress has overridden judicial decisions that went beyond the common law.” Id. at 447 (citing Darden, 503 U.S. at 324-325).

The Clackamas court considered the common law definition of the master-servant relationship, which focuses on the master’s control over the servant. The court cites to definition of “servant” in the Restatement (Second) of Agency § 2(2) (1958): “a servant is a person employed to perform services in the affairs of another and who with respect to the physical conduct in the performance of services is subject to the other’s control or right to control.” Id. at 448. The Restatement additionally lists factors for consideration when distinguishing between servants and independent contractors, “the first of which is ‘the extent of control’ that one may exercise over the details of the work of the other.” Id. (citing § 220(2)(a)). The court also looked to the EEOC’s focus on control in Skidmore v. Swift & Co., 323 U.S. 134, 140 (1944) and that the EEOC considered an employer can hire and fire employees, assign tasks to employees and supervise their performance, can decide how the business’ profits and losses are distributed. Id. at 449-450. Additionally, as set forth in the recent Memorandum from Donald Neufeld, Associate Director, Service Center Operations, Determining Employer-Employee Relationship for Adjudication of H-1B Petitions, Including Third Party Site Placements, HQ 70/6.2.8, January 8, 2010, the memo looks to whether the employer has the “right to control” where, when and how the beneficiary performs the job. The memo considers many of the factors set forth in Darden, Clackamas, and the Restatement, including who provides the tools necessary to perform the job duties, control to the extent of who hires, pays and fires, if necessary, the beneficiary, and who controls the manner and means by which the beneficiary’s work product is completed.

The petition will be denied for the above stated reasons, with each considered as an independent and alternative basis for denial. In visa petition proceedings, the burden of proving eligibility for the benefit sought remains entirely with the petitioner. Section 291 of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1361. Here, that burden has not been met.
